

Dr. Andrew Boulton
UK y U.S.A.

Professor Andrew Boulton graduated with honors in medicine from the University of Newcastle upon Tyne (MB, BS, 1976) and subsequently obtained the MRCP in 1979 and he was elected FRCP in 1992. He obtained his MD (PhD) in complications of diabetes from the University of Newcastle upon Tyne in 1985. After clinical training in Newcastle upon Tyne, Sheffield and later Miami, was appointed Senior Lecturer in Medicine/Consultant Physician at the University of Manchester in 1986. He was subsequently promoted to Reader and then in 1995 to Professor of Medicine.

Professor Boulton has been Chairman of Postgraduate Education for the European Diabetes Association (EASD) and was subsequently Honorary Secretary / Programme Chair. Currently he is Professor of Medicine (Diabetes) at the University of Manchester and Consultant Physician at the Manchester Royal Infirmary, and visiting Professor of Medicine at the University of Miami, FL, USA.

He has published over 350 peer review papers and currently holds major grants from agencies including the NIH and Diabetes UK.

Andrew was the first Awardee of the International Award into Diabetic Foot Research (1995). He also received the Roger Pecoraro Award from the American Diabetes Association (1996) and the Castelli-Pedroli Prize from the European Association for the Study of Diabetes (2003).

More recently (2005) he was awarded the Edward Olmos Award for Advocacy in the Prevention of Amputation in Diabetes. Last year (2008) he received the Outstanding achievement award of the American Professional Wound Care association and the ADA Harold Rifkin award for distinguished international service in the cause of diabetes.

Andrew was formally Editor of Diabetic Medicine (1991- 1995) and is currently an Associate Editor for Diabetes Care as well as being on the Editorial Board of Current Diabetes reports and the International Diabetes Monitor. He currently is the advisor to the NIH for the EDIC Study (Epidemiology of Diabetes and its Complications), the follow up of the DCTT Study.

Andrew Boulton is member of the British, European and American Diabetes Associations and is currently Vice-President and Director of International Postgraduate Education of the EASD